Any information contained in this document must not be construed as business advice. No consideration to trade should be made without thoroughly understanding and reviewing the risks involved in such trading. If you are unsure, you must seek professional advice on the same.

In considering whether to trade or authorise someone to trade for you, you should be aware of or must get acquainted with the following:-

1. Basic risks

1.1 Risk of Higher Volatility

Volatility refers to the dynamic changes in price that a security/derivatives contract undergoes when trading activity continues on the Stock Exchanges. Generally, higher the volatility of a security/derivatives contract, greater is its price swings. There may be normally greater volatility in thinly traded securities/derivatives contracts than in active securities /derivatives contracts. As a result of volatility, your order may only be partially executed or not executed at all, or the price at which your order got executed may be substantially different from the last traded price or change substantially thereafter, resulting in notional or real losses.

1.2 Risk of Lower Liquidity

Liquidity refers to the ability of market participants to buy and/or sell securities/derivatives contracts expeditiously at a competitive price and with minimal price difference. Generally, it is assumed that more the numbers of orders available in a market, greater is the liquidity. Liquidity is important because with greater liquidity, it is easier for investors to buy and/or sell securities/derivatives contracts swiftly and with minimal price difference, and as a result, investors are more likely to pay or receive a competitive price for securities/derivatives contracts purchased or sold. There may be a risk of lower liquidity in some securities/derivatives contracts as compared to active securities/derivatives contracts. As a result, your order may only be partially executed, or may be executed with relatively greater price difference or may not be executed at all.

1.2.1 Buying or selling securities/derivatives contracts as part of a day trading strategy may also result into losses, because in such a situation, securities/derivatives contracts may have to be sold/purchased at low/high prices, compared to the expected price levels, so as not to have any open position or obligation to deliver or receive a security/derivatives contract.

1.3 Risk of Wider Spreads

Spread refers to the difference in best buy price and best sell price. It represents the differential between the price of buying a security/derivatives contract and immediately selling it or vice versa. Lower liquidity and higher volatility may result in wider than normal spreads for less liquid or illiquid securities/derivatives contracts. This in turn will hamper better price formation.

1.4 Risk-reducing orders

The placing of orders (e.g., “stop loss” orders, or “limit” orders) which are intended to limit losses to certain amounts may not be effective many a time because rapid movement in market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders.

1.4.1 A “market” order will be executed promptly, subject to availability of orders on opposite side, without regard to price and that, while the customer may receive a prompt execution of a “market” order, the execution may be at available prices of outstanding orders, which satisfy the order quantity, on price time priority. It may be understood that these prices may be significantly different from the last traded price or the best price in that security/derivatives contract.

1.4.2 A “limit” order will be executed only at the “limit” price specified for the order or a better price. However, while the customer receives price protection, there is a possibility that the order may not be executed at all.

1.4.3 A stop loss order is generally placed “away” from the current price of a stock/derivatives contract, and such order gets activated if and when the security/derivatives contract reaches, or trades through, the stop price. Sell stop orders are entered ordinarily below the current price, and buy stop orders are entered ordinarily above the current price. When the security/derivatives contract reaches the pre-determined price, or trades through such price, the stop loss order converts to a market/limit order and is executed at the limit or better. There is no assurance therefore that the limit order will be executable since a security/derivatives contract might penetrate the pre-determined price, in which case, the risk of such order not getting executed arises, just as with a regular limit order.

1.5 Risk of News Announcements

News announcements that may impact the price of stock/derivatives contract may occur during trading, and when combined with lower liquidity and higher volatility, may suddenly cause an unexpected positive or negative movement in the price of the security/contract.

1.6 Risk of Rumors

Rumors about companies/currencies at times float in the market through word of mouth, newspapers, websites or news agencies, etc. The investors should be wary of and should desist from acting on rumors.

1.7 System Risk

High volume trading will frequently occur at the market opening and before market close. Such high volumes may also occur at any point in the day. These may cause delays in order execution or confirmation.

1.7.1 During periods of volatility, on account of market participants continuously modifying their order quantity or prices or placing fresh orders, there may be delays in order execution and its confirmations.

1.7.2 Under certain market conditions, it may be difficult or impossible to liquidate a position in the market at a reasonable price or at all, when there are no outstanding orders either on the buy side or the sell side, or if trading is halted in a security/derivatives contract due to any action on account of unusual trading activity or security/derivatives contract hitting circuit filters or for any other reason.

1.8 System/Network Congestion

Trading on exchanges is in electronic mode, based on satellite/leased line based communications, combination of technologies and computer systems to place and route orders. Thus, there exists a possibility of communication failure or system problems or slow or delayed response from system or trading halt, or any such other problem/glitch whereby not being able to establish access to the trading system/network, which may be beyond control and may result in delay in processing or not processing buy or sell orders either in part or in full. You are cautioned to note that although these problems may be temporary in nature, but when you have outstanding open positions or unexecuted orders, these represent a risk because of your obligations to settle all executed transactions.

2. As far as Derivatives segments are concerned, please note and get yourself acquainted with the following additional features

2.1 Effect of “Leverage” or “Gearing”

In the derivatives market, the amount of margin is small relative to the value of the derivatives contract so the transactions are 'leveraged' or 'geared'. Derivatives trading, which is conducted with a relatively small amount of margin, provides the possibility of great profit or loss in comparison with the margin amount. But transactions in derivatives carry a high degree of risk.

You should therefore completely understand the following statements before actually trading in derivatives and also trade with caution while taking into account one's circumstances, financial resources, etc. If the prices move against you, you may lose a part of or whole margin amount in a relatively short period of time. Moreover, the loss may exceed the original margin amount.

- A. Futures trading involve daily settlement of all positions. Every day the open positions are marked to market based on the closing level of the index/derivatives contract. If the contract has moved against you, you will be required to deposit the amount of loss (notional) resulting from such movement. This amount will have to be paid within a stipulated time frame, generally before commencement of trading on next day.
- B. If you fail to deposit the additional amount by the deadline or if an outstanding debt occurs in your account, the stock broker may liquidate a part of or the whole position or substitute securities. In this case, you will be liable for any losses incurred due to such close-outs.
- C. Under certain market conditions, an investor may find it difficult or impossible to execute transactions. For example, this situation can occur due to factors such as illiquidity i.e. when there are insufficient bids or offers or suspension of trading due to price limit or circuit breakers etc.
- D. In order to maintain market stability, the following steps may be adopted: changes in the margin rate, increases in the cash margin rate or others. These new measures may also be applied to the existing open interests. In such conditions, you will be required to put up additional margins or reduce your positions.
- E. You must ask your broker to provide the full details of derivatives contracts you plan to trade i.e. the contract specifications and the associated obligations.

2.2 Currency specific risks

1. The profit or loss in transactions in foreign currency-denominated contracts, whether they are traded in your own or another jurisdiction, will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates where there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the contract to another currency.

2. Under certain market conditions, you may find it difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. This can occur, for example when a currency is deregulated or fixed trading bands are widened.
3. Currency prices are highly volatile. Price movements for currencies are influenced by, among other things: changing supply-demand relationships; trade, fiscal, monetary, exchange control programs and policies of governments; foreign political and economic events and policies; changes in national and international interest rates and inflation; currency devaluation; and sentiment of the market place. None of these factors can be controlled by any individual advisor and no assurance can be given that an advisor's advice will result in profitable trades for a participating customer or that a customer will not incur losses from such events.

2.3 Risk of Option holders

1. An option holder runs the risk of losing the entire amount paid for the option in a relatively short period of time. This risk reflects the nature of an option as a wasting asset which becomes worthless when it expires. An option holder who neither sells his option in the secondary market nor exercises it prior to its expiration will necessarily lose his entire investment in the option. If the price of the underlying does not change in the anticipated direction before the option expires, to an extent sufficient to cover the cost of the option, the investor may lose all or a significant part of his investment in the option.
2. The Exchanges may impose exercise restrictions and have absolute authority to restrict the exercise of options at certain times in specified circumstances.

2.4 Risks of Option Writers

1. If the price movement of the underlying is not in the anticipated direction, the option writer runs the risks of losing substantial amount.
2. The risk of being an option writer may be reduced by the purchase of other options on the same underlying interest and thereby assuming a spread position or by acquiring other types of hedging positions in the options markets or other markets. However, even where the writer has assumed a spread or other hedging position, the risks may still be significant. A spread position is not necessarily less risky than a simple 'long' or 'short' position.
3. Transactions that involve buying and writing multiple options in combination, or buying or writing options in combination with buying or selling short the underlying interests, present additional risks to investors. Combination transactions, such as option spreads, are more complex than buying or writing a single option. And it should be further noted that, as in any area of investing, a complexity not well understood is, in itself, a risk factor. While this is not to suggest that combination strategies should not be considered, it is advisable, as is the case with all investments in options, to consult with someone who is experienced and knowledgeable with respect to the risks and potential rewards of combination transactions under various market circumstances.

2.5 Interest Rate futures (IRF) Specific Risks

1. Interest rates can be quite volatile. Among other things, bonds yields are influenced by: changing supply-demand relationships; trade, fiscal, monetary, exchange control programs and policies of governments; foreign political and economic events and policies; changes in national and international interest rates and inflation; currency devaluation; credit rating action; and sentiment of the market place. None of these factors can be controlled by any individual advisor and no assurance can be given that an advisor's advice will result in profitable trades for a participating customer or that a customer will not incur losses from such events.
2. The value of the investment changes due to a change in the absolute level of interest rates. IRFs are based on an underlying security which is highly sensitive to the changes in the Interest Rates. When interest rates increase, the buyer of IRF will pay the Seller the amount equivalent to the change in the underlying. Alternatively, when interest rates decline, the seller of IRF will pay the Buyer the amount equivalent to the change in the underlying.
3. Bond price changes are a function of the change in interest rate and the duration of the bonds. Other things being equal, the further the maturity of the bond, the higher is its duration and hence sensitivity to changes in interest rates.

4. Under certain market conditions, you may find it difficult to liquidate a positions; for instance in the case of a sharp change in benchmark interest rates or a widening of the trading bands or when there are trading restrictions imposed by regulators.
5. While the underlying securities carry the highest domestic credit rating, in the event of high financial stress, the credit rating may be impaired, exposing the investors to credit/default risk.

3. Trading through wireless technology/smart order routing or any other technology

Any additional provisions defining the features, risks, responsibilities, obligations and liabilities associated with securities trading through wireless technology/smart order routing or any other technology should be brought to the notice of the client by the stock broker.

4. General

If the Client wishes to reactivate an inactive account, the client must contact BSIPL, BSIPL may then reactivate the account after conducting additional checks as it considers appropriate. 12.1 Your trading exposure limit (TL) will be determined relative to the value of the assets (funds, fixed deposits and guarantees, and securities) placed with BSIPL as margin for positions taken on the Exchanges. Your PCA/PCE can provide your TL upon request.

12.2 You must specify the segment of the Exchange for which the assets are being deposited to be held as margin. If you do not specify the segment, we may allocate the margin between segments at our discretion.

12.3 Where we believe there is a shortfall of margin, we will check each sub-account set up for you in relation to your investment portfolio, accounts held with BSIPL, as well as margin held at an overall account level.

13. Products

13.1 When placing Equity orders, please indicate the basis on which you wish to trade in:

(a) Cash and Carry (or Delivery with 100% upfront payment)

For trades on a “Cash and Carry” basis, your TL is reduced by 100% of the trade value. This means that if you have given us a deposit of Rs 5,000, you will be allowed to purchase securities up to the value of Rs 5,000. Sale transactions can be made to the extent of shares available with BSIPL or in your demat account which you have authorised BSIPL to operate.

(b) Intra Day (or Daily Square-off)

For trades on an “Intra Day” basis, your TL is reduced by a margin percentage determined by BSIPL from time to time, details of which can be found at:

<http://www.barclayswealth.com/india-brokingclients.htm>. That is to say, if your “TL” is Rs 1,000 and you place a transaction worth Rs 100 for a security whose margin requirement is 25%, then your TL would be reduced by a value of Rs 25. You must ensure with your PCA/PCE that any open positions are squared off no later than 30 minutes from the end of trading on the trade date (or earlier at the discretion of BSIPL), or they will be compulsorily squared-off (BSIPL will have the right to and only endeavour to square off the same and will not be responsible if BSIPL does not actually square off the position). Any profit/loss on such forced square off would be for your account. You may however decide not to square off a trade and convert it into a normal (NRML) product.

(c) Normal (or Delivery with part-payment upfront)

For trades on a normal basis, your TL is reduced by a margin percentage determined by BSIPL from time to time, details of which can be found at <https://www.barclays.in/personal-banking/bsipl/broking-services/> Funds or securities as required to settle the trade need to be provided subsequently as described below. In respect of Derivatives orders, Exchange specified margins are applicable as increased by a margin factor as indicated at <https://www.barclays.in/personal-banking/bsipl/broking-services/>

(d) Margin Trading Facility

For buy trades executed in the cash segment as Margin Trading Facility (MTF), shall mean the option to make a Buy transaction which the client intends to maintain beyond the current settlement period by providing the necessary margins as prescribed by BSIPL from time to time and the balance amount is funded by BSIPL as a loan to meet the pay-in obligation of the Client. BSIPL shall charge margins as applicable as per the regulations from time to time. BSIPL may also charge additional margin as per its discretion from time to time. The client would have an option to mention the type of order at the time of the order placement or convert the trade to MTF on the Trade date before close of market hours. BSIPL will have the discretion to accept the conversion request based on sufficient margins placed by the client with BSIPL as a Stock Broker. The client can later take delivery by making the outstanding funds settlement or liquidate such positions. In case of MTF if the securities are bought on a particular stock exchange they can be sold only on that stock exchange.

In order to avail MTF, minimum initial margin required shall be as under:

Category of Stock	Applicable Margin
Group 1 stocks available for trading in the F&O Segment	VaR + 3 times of applicable ELM*
Group 1 stocks other than F&O stocks	VaR + 5 times of applicable ELM*

*The applicable VaR and ELM shall be as in the cash segment for a particular security. The minimum initial margin is prescribed by SEBI/Stock Exchanges and it may change from time to time. BSIPL may consequently, change its margin requirements basis the changes prescribed by SEBI/Exchanges.

For trades in MTF, your total margin placed under MTF would be reduced by the margin percentage as specified by the Exchange from time to time for the position taken under this facility. Your margins under MTF will not be adjusted against the margins placed in the Non-MTF segments placed with BSIPL in other segments unless your give specific instructions to BSIPL.
