unless we otherwise agree with you in writing (including in your Services Application Form or any Services Terms and Conditions) or we tell you that instructions can only be given in a particular way for a certain Accounts or Services. We will, unless agreed otherwise in writing, not accept instructions by telephone if joint signing instructions apply.

When your instructions are deemed effective?

- 2.5 Instructions are effective when we receive them. Except where verbal instructions are given, we will generally not acknowledge receipt of instructions other than by acting on them but we may call you to check any instructions or acceptance by us of any instructions sent Electronically.
- 2.6 If you give an instruction by telephone, facsimile or Electronically, we may, at our discretion, ask you to confirm it in writing. You must confirm your instruction as soon as possible to avoid any delay in our acting on it.
- 2.7 Generally we cannot change or stop an instruction you gave (except in certain limited circumstances we will tell you about) because we start processing instructions when we receive them. If we are able to change or cancel your instructions, we may impose a charge. We shall not be liable to you for any Losses suffered or incurred by you if in our opinion, the original instruction has already been completed or we have insufficient time or is unable to change or cancel the original instruction.
- 2.8 We can act on instructions:

- (a) given in a document that we reasonably believe bears your signature(s) or that of any person notified by you to us as authorised to give instructions on your behalf; or

and there are no circumstances that we are, or should reasonably be, aware of that cast doubt on the identity of the person giving the instruction, We will take reasonable steps to notify you if we are in doubt as to the authenticity of any instruction.

Where instructions are given by anyone notified to us as being authorised to give instructions on your behalf, we can continue to act on their instructions unless we receive written notice from you that they are no longer authorised. If one or more of such authorised persons die, loses their legal capacity or renounce the powers granted to them, we will assume the remaining authorised persons continue to be authorised unless we have received written notice from you that they are no longer authorised.

- 2.9 We reserve the right to take additional security measures before acting on instructions from time to time. We may assume, unless we are aware of an obvious error, that information you give us for an instruction, including any account number quoted in the instruction is correct. We will not be responsible for errors arising as a result of unclear orders received Electronically or by telephone.
- 2.10 We may refuse to act on any instruction if:
- (a) we reasonably believe by carrying out the instruction, we or an Associate might break a law, regulation, code or other duty which applies to us or become exposed to action or censure from any government, regulator or law enforcement agency;
 - (b) the instruction is not clear, does not satisfy any requirements that apply to the Service(s) or product or was not given by you or an authorised person; or

Unless applicable laws and regulations prevent us from doing so, we shall take reasonable steps to notify you in the above circumstances. You agree that receipt by such agent or service provider of such instruction or notification will not be regarded as receipt by us of such instruction or notification until we actually receive it.

- 2.13 Unless otherwise agreed between us, individuals authorised to give instructions on Accounts of unincorporated clubs, charities, societies and other forms of association are individually and jointly liable for money owed to us. This means that we have the right to demand repayment of the full amount owed to us, and not just a share of it, from any of the authorised signatories.

We are not obliged to ask for other proof of identity but reserve the right to do so. We will accept no liability in any case where we fail to notice a falsification, forgery or other defect in signature, authentication or legal capacity, except where gross negligence or fraud has been proven against us. 11. Conflicts of interest and material interest

11.1 The complexity and size of our business, our position within the wider Barclays Group, and our reliance on third parties at various points can occasionally lead to situations where our interests and/or those of our staff conflict with your interests. Equally, your interests may occasionally compete with those of other clients.

11.2 Where we are aware or made aware that we are faced with a situation of competing interests, we will undertake all reasonable steps to protect your interests and ensure you fair treatment, in line with the duties we owe you as our client.

11.3 Where we are not satisfied that our arrangements to handle conflicts are sufficient to prevent a conflict of interest from potentially harming your interests, we will:

- (a) disclose the nature and source of the conflict to you; and 11.6 When providing Services or conducting business for you:

- (a) we may receive from or pay to a third party commissions or other benefits in relation to that business (we will ensure that these arrangements provide for an enhancement of the Service(s) to which they relate and that they do not prevent us from acting in your best interests); and
- (b) we and any Associates are permitted to deal in Investments with you as agent and/or principal.

You agree that neither the relationship between you and us as described in the Terms and Conditions nor any other Service(s) that we provide to you will give rise to any duties on our part or that of our Associates that would prevent us or our Associates doing any kind of business except where it would not be permitted under the applicable laws and regulations.

11.7 We and our Associates provide a range of Services and may possess information of a confidential or non-public nature which we are under a duty not to disclose or use for our own benefit or anyone else's. 12A Disclosure Obligations

12A.1 If you (or a person with whom you have a joint account) are subject to tax or reporting in another country (or we have reason to believe or are required to presume that this may be the case), we, and other Barclays Group entities, may be required by legislation, regulation or by agreement with tax authorities of that country to report on an ongoing basis certain information about you and your account on an individual or aggregate basis:

- (i) to a relevant tax authority which may then pass that information to the tax authorities where you are subject to tax; or
- (ii) directly to the tax authorities in that country (such as the United States).

If you are not an individual, we, and other Barclays Group entities, may also have to report information about your direct and indirect shareholders or other owners or interest holders and, if you are a trust, your beneficiaries, settlors or trustees.

If this applies to you at any time, the information we, and other Barclays Group entities, would have to report includes information about you, your accounts and other products, for example your account number(s), the amount of payments including interest paid or credited to the account(s), the account balance(s) or value(s), your names, addresses, countries of residence and social security numbers/taxpayer identification numbers or similar (if applicable).

12A.2 You acknowledge that, to comply with these obligations, we, and other Barclays Group entities, need to review certain information they holds about you or additional documents and information we, and other Barclays Group entities, obtain from you, such as certifications about your identity, tax residence, nationality and status. We, or the Barclays Group, may centralise this review process in another country and we, or the Barclays Group, may also use carefully selected agents or sub-contractors that have adequate protections for keeping its customers' data secure and operate under a strict duty of confidentiality to us.

12A.3 You hereby consent and agree:

- (i) to provide any additional information or documents we request from you in order to comply with our reporting obligations;
- (ii) that we may make the disclosures to the tax authorities described above;
- (iii) to waive any rights to limit or prevent disclosure to tax authorities, under applicable data protection, bank secrecy or similar laws in respect of the information we report to comply with these obligations;
- (iv) if you do not provide us with information or documents we need or do not provide a waiver of confidentiality rights where needed, we may (i) withhold on amounts, including interest (and in certain circumstances gross proceeds from 2019), paid or credited to us; or (ii) close or block your account, terminate or redeem our product and/or end our contractual or other relationship with you; and/or (iii) transfer the account, product or relationship (and its associated assets and liabilities) to an affiliate of the Barclays Group in another jurisdiction (and, for the avoidance of doubt, and you shall be deemed to have given consent to any such transfer);
- (v) if you ask us to make a payment to an account based at a financial institution which does not participate or comply with relevant tax legislation, we may be required, and you authorise us, to withhold certain amounts, for example, in respect of US tax liabilities from the payment (we will tell you if this is the case);
- (vi) that we may transfer your data to another country for processing including countries which may not have an adequate level of protection for data law purposes and use agents and sub-contractors to process your data to comply with our obligations;
- (vii) to the greatest extent permitted by applicable law, we will not be liable to you for any loss you may suffer as a result of our complying with legislation or agreements with tax authorities in accordance with this clause, unless that loss is caused by fraud on our part; and

(viii) that this consent will override any inconsistent term or consent provided by you under any agreement with us, to the extent it provides fewer or lesser rights for us, whether before or after the date of these Terms and Conditions.

13 Legal and Tax

13.1 You have sole responsibility for complying with any applicable laws and regulations and the management of your tax affairs. You confirm that you have and are compliant with all applicable filings and payments, in particular, all tax declaration and reporting obligations relating to the Assets held in your Account and any income or gains they produce (the “Tax Obligations”).

In the event that you are holding Assets in an Account as trustee or in any other fiduciary or non-personal capacity, you confirm that you will make relevant information provided to you by us available as often as may be required, and no less than annually, to any beneficial owner, settlor or beneficiary or other similar person who may need to receive it to enable that person to fulfill any applicable legal and tax obligations in a timely manner. You also confirm that all such persons are aware of all applicable legal and tax obligations, that we are not legal or tax advisers on those obligations and they have undertaken, to the best of your knowledge, all necessary steps to fulfill such obligations.

13.2 BSIPL and its Associates will not provide you with legal or tax advice. The value to you, and the effects on you, of some of our Service(s) may depend on your tax status. We recommend that you obtain your own independent legal and tax advice, tailored to your particular circumstances.

We may ask questions about your personal tax position and may explain to you our understanding of the generic legal or tax position relating to our products or Services in order to provide you with information on those products or Services and to assist us in selecting which products or services may be appropriate for you. We do not warrant or assume any duty of care to investigate into whether or not, or to ensure that, the information is complete, up-to-date, accurate or necessarily appropriate to or takes into account fully your circumstances. We do not assume any legal responsibility for anyone acting on the information provided.

13.3 You confirm that you are aware of all legal and tax obligations that apply to you arising from the products and Services that we provide to you and that you will undertake all necessary steps to fulfill these obligations.

13.4 You will indemnify us against any tax liability that may be incurred by us in respect of transactions entered into by us on your behalf.

13.5 In the course of our relationship with you, we will provide you with Account statements and other standard information. It is your responsibility to identify and obtain all the information that you may require to fulfill your legal and tax obligations. We will consider written requests from you for the provision of further information but you acknowledge that, unless we are required to do so by law or regulation, we are not obliged to provide such information.

13.6 We are authorised to withhold and pay on your behalf any taxes or duties payable in respect of any Securities, or any Account, facility or Service provided to you.

13.7 There may be other taxes or costs that are not paid through us or imposed by us that you have to pay in connection with your Account.

13.8 If you are paying us interest, fees or any other payment, you may be required by law to deduct tax or other duties from the amounts payable to us. This would mean that you would need to deduct tax from the payment before paying us. Where this is the case, you must “gross up” the payment so that the net amount we receive is equal to the full amount we would have received had the payments made by you not been subject to a tax deduction. You are responsible for the payment of any withholding tax to the applicable tax authorities.

13.9 If you request us to maintain separate Accounts for capital and income, we will endeavour to allocate your Assets and the proceeds arising from such Assets between those Accounts in a manner that we consider is reasonably consistent with your requirements. However, in some cases, it may be difficult to determine when and how to categorise amounts as either capital or income, and in what proportions. In addition, definitions of capital and income may vary in different tax jurisdictions. Accordingly, we will not be liable to you for the timing or allocation of amounts between your capital and income Accounts. You should seek your own professional advice on the correct allocation between capital and income, particularly if this is likely to have tax implications for you.

13.10(a) You consent to the withholding or deduction by us (or any entity in the Barclays Group or its delegates or other withholding agent or third party (e.g. custodian)) from any payment to you, or to or from your account or any account of any amount of withholding, income tax, value added tax, tax on the sale or disposition of any property, duties or other lawfully collected amounts (together, the “Collected Amounts”) collected or paid under FATCA which we (or any entity in the Barclays Group) reasonably determines is required under FATCA.

(b) You acknowledge and accept that we (or any entity in the Barclays Group) will not be required to reimburse you for any amount withheld or deducted by us (or any entity in the Barclays Group), any delegate or any other person. To the extent we, any Affiliate, any delegate or any other party pays or is or becomes required to pay any amount that should have been, but was not deducted and withheld from a payment to you, or to or from your account, or any account required as described above in this paragraph, you shall indemnify us for such amount, plus any interest and penalties thereon, provided we (or any entity in the Barclays Group) or any of its delegates paid or is or becomes required to pay the amount to a governmental authority in any jurisdiction, domestic or foreign.

- (c) You represent that you have secured from any person that will own a beneficial interest in a payment from us (or any entity in the Barclays Group) any consent or waiver necessary to permit us (or any entity in the Barclays Group) and any delegate to carry out the actions described in this Clause 13.10.

14. Variations

14.1 We may change any of the provisions in the Terms and Conditions for any reason not listed below in this Clause 14 provided that:

- (a) you are able to terminate our Services without charge; or
- (b) we agree to waive any charge that would otherwise apply.

14.2 We will not reduce a fixed or bonus rate on an Account for the period that we have agreed to keep it fixed.

14.3 If we provide a new Service or facility in connection with an Account or Service (including any benefits or services provided as part of an account package), we may introduce a new charge for providing you with that Service or facility.

14.4 We may change our charges or introduce a new charge if there is a change in (or we reasonably expect that there will be a change) in the costs we incur in carrying out the activity for which the charge is or will be made or the applicable laws and regulations. Any change or new charge will be a fair proportion, as reasonably estimated by us, of the impact of the underlying change on the costs we incur in our business and operations.

14.5 We may also change our charges for a valid reason and we will give you notice in accordance with Clause 14.8.

14.6 We may change any of the Terms and Conditions in order to upgrade your Account or enhance the services we provide to you, after giving you notice in writing in accordance with Clause 14.8, if we reasonably consider this to be to your advantage and there is no increased cost to you.

14.7 We may also change the Terms and Conditions for any of the following reasons:

(a) where we reasonably consider that:

- (i) the change would make the terms easier to understand or fairer to you; or
- (ii) the change would not be to your disadvantage;

(b) to cover:

- (i) the improvement of any Service or facility we supply in connection with the Account(s);
- (ii) the introduction of a new Service or facility;
- (iii) the replacement of an existing Service or facility with a new one; or
- (iv) the withdrawal of a Service or facility which has become obsolete, or has ceased to be widely used, or has not been used by you at any time in the previous year;

(c) to enable us to make reasonable changes to the way we look after your Accounts or provide services as a result of changes in:

- (i) the banking, investment or financial system;
- (ii) technology; or
- (iii) the systems we use to run our business and operations; or

(d) as a result of applicable laws and regulations (or where we reasonably expect that there will be a change in an applicable law or regulation).

14.8 Unless stated above and under this Clause 14, we will give you notice (by post or Electronically) of any change made under this Clause 14 at least 30 days in advance of the change coming into effect. However, we may introduce changes as soon as we give you notice if we consider they are necessary, or to take account of legal or regulatory requirements, or if they are technical or procedural in nature and we reasonably believe they will help us to improve our service to you.

Where we do so:

- (a) we will tell you the date the change comes into effect; and
- (b) if notice is given to you at the most recent physical or email address we have for you, you will be treated as having agreed to be bound by that change with immediate effect or 30 days after the notice is deemed to have been received by you (as the case may be), unless you terminate the Terms and Conditions or our Services under Clause 14.10.

14.9 Any new or changed charge will be communicated to you before the new or changed charge takes effect. If we are going to carry out an activity for which the charge has changed since we last notified you of the applicable charges, we will tell you what the new charge is before we carry out the activity.

14.10 If you do not want to be treated as accepting a change, you must, before it comes into effect, tell us that you want to terminate the Terms and Conditions with us.

14.11 Except as provided in the Terms and Conditions, no provision of the Terms and Conditions shall be deemed waived, altered, modified or amended unless otherwise agreed with you in writing.

(iii) until we are given other instructions by the survivor(s)/successor(s), we may continue to provide our Services in accordance with the latest instructions and mandate; and

(iv) we will act in accordance with Clause 26.

15.2 We cannot accept telephone instructions if any person(s) jointly availing the Service(s) has told us only to accept instructions given jointly by two or more such persons.

15.6 Unless joint Account holders instruct otherwise, we may credit their joint Account with any Assets or Securities received by us in the sole name of any Account holder.

- (a) only your Authorised Signatory/ies may give or receive any instruction, notice, request or acknowledgement;
- (b) you shall be liable for all your acts and/or omissions including those that are contrary to your documents of constitution and/or any statute or regulation of any regulatory authority/ies;

- (c) where separate instructions are given and are conflicting in nature, we are entitled to act on any of those instructions or to delay acting on those instructions until the apparent conflict has been resolved;
- (d) until we receive written communication from you revoking the authority of the Authorised Signatory/ies, we shall continue to act on the instructions of such Authorised Signatory/ies and you shall be responsible for the same. We may not be able to act on such communications immediately in certain circumstances and therefore sufficient time should be available to us to enforce the revocation. Any instructions issued and acted upon by us during the intervening period shall be your responsibility; and
- (e) that your Authorised Signatory/ies may give us an effective and final discharge in respect of any of our obligations under the Terms and Conditions.

17. Termination

17.1 The Terms and Conditions or the provision of any of our Services may be terminated:

- (a) by mutual consent of the Parties hereto;
- (b) by either Party at any time by giving at least 30 days' written notice to the other Party. Where the account holder comprises more than one person, we may require such notice to be given by all such persons;
- (c) if the Services Application Form and/or any agreement is sought to be disclaimed and/or is no longer binding on you;

- (e) in the event that any statutory or government license or permission or registration is withdrawn, cancelled or nullified causing the terms of the Terms and Conditions to be inoperative or unenforceable.

17.2 Without prejudice to any other right we have under the Terms and Conditions or any other agreement with you or otherwise at law, we may at any time after the occurrence of a Default, do any one or more of the following without notice:

- (a) immediately suspend, cancel or terminate any or all Accounts, Services or transactions entered into or effected with or for your account or our relationship with you;

- (b) accelerate any and all liabilities (whether actual or contingent at that time) of you to us so that they shall become immediately due and payable;
- (c) liquidate and realize any of your property in our possession or control;
- (c) suspend, terminate, assign or dispose of any or all contracts, transactions or Instruments to which you are entitled or are a party (including any open positions on any Securities or Assets held on your behalf, or contracts or transactions between you and us or entered into by us on your behalf) at prevailing market prices, or at prices regarded by us in good faith as the best prices available at such time; and
- (d) apply any amounts of any nature standing to your credit or due to you (or any account holder where there is more than one account holder) from us against any amounts that you (or any of you where there is more than one account holder) owe to us or any Associate (of whatsoever nature and howsoever arising, including any contingent amounts), or generally to exercise our rights of set-off, combination of accounts or consolidation against you.

17.3 For the purposes of this clause, a "Default" shall be deemed to occur in the event that:

- (a) you (or any of you where there is more than one account holder):
 - (i) have failed to comply with or observe any provision of the Terms and Conditions or any other obligation owed to us;

- (c) any dispute or proceedings arise between any of the persons making up the Account holder where there is more than one;

- (d) we reasonably believe that you have given us any false information at any time;
- (e) we reasonably believe that you are, or someone else, is using the Account illegally;
- (f) continuing to provide the Services under the Terms and Conditions results in or may result in us being in breach of any applicable law or sanction;
- (g) by maintaining your Account(s) we may damage our reputation;
- (h) you have been in a serious or persistent breach of the Terms and Conditions or any additional terms which apply to an Account; or
- (i) any other matter or event arises including any regulatory requirement, which in our good faith opinion renders termination necessary or advisable in our interests.

17.4 Termination of the Terms and Conditions, closure of any Account or termination of a particular Service will not affect (i) the provision of any other Services under the Terms and Conditions that have not been terminated, (ii) any contractual provisions intended to survive termination or closure or (iii) any accrued rights, liabilities or existing commitments (including those in relation to any transactions entered into at the date of termination or closure but unsettled, which shall be completed expeditiously by us).

- (b) you will be released from any further obligation to us; and

19 Delegation

19.1 We may delegate, the extent permitted under applicable laws and regulations, any of our functions and responsibilities under the Terms and Conditions to any person including an Associate (with or without a power to further sub-delegate), provided that we reasonably consider it capable of discharging those functions and responsibilities. 21. Waiver

- 21.1 Our failure to insist on you strictly complying with the Terms and Conditions or any act or omission on our part will not amount to a waiver of our rights under the Terms and Conditions.
- 21.2 Any waiver by us of a breach of any provision of the Terms and Conditions shall not affect our rights in relation to: (a) any other breaches of the same provision of which we are not aware; (b) breaches of any other provisions of the Terms and Conditions that are existing at the time of the waiver; (c) any further, continuous or future breach of the provision whose breach has been waived; or (d) breaches of any other provisions.

22. Severability

- 22.1 Each provision of the Terms and Conditions is severable. To the extent that any provision is or becomes invalid, unenforceable or contrary to any applicable law, then it will be given no effect and will be deemed not to be included in the Terms and Conditions, and the remaining provisions of the Terms and Conditions will still be valid and enforceable.

23. Entire agreement

- 23.1 The Terms and Conditions sets out the entire agreement and understanding between us with respect to its subject matter. It supersedes all previous agreements and understandings between us with respect to its subject matter. This clause shall not limit or exclude any liability for fraud.

- 26.1 If you die, the Terms and Conditions will continue to bind your estate until terminated by, or us giving notice to, your validly appointed personal representative. Your estate must provide us with such information as we reasonably require to confirm your death and the appointment of the personal representative.
- 26.2 Once we received the grant of representation for your estate (or such other formal appointment as applicable in your jurisdiction), we will act in accordance with your personal representative's instructions as permitted by applicable laws and regulations, but:

 - (d) if your estate is too small to warrant a grant of representation, we may at our discretion pay the balance on your personal representative's instructions. This is provided that we receive a signed agreement from the personal representative to reimburse us for any loss we suffer as a result.

- 26.3 Until we are given instructions by persons proven by a court order of competent jurisdiction to be your personal representative, we may (but are not obliged to):
- (a) in relation to discretionary investment management services, continue to manage the investments in accordance with any agreed mandate; and
 - (b) provide, on request, and subject to the provision of additional information and indemnities as we may reasonably require, investment advice to those people who we reasonably believe are likely to be proven to be the personal representatives in accordance with the latest agreed client risk profiling report.
- 26.4 Notwithstanding anything in the Terms and Conditions, if the Terms and Conditions is not terminated within two years of the date of your death, we may take such action as we reasonably consider appropriate to close your Account(s). Your estate or your personal representative will be liable for all reasonable costs associated with us taking this action, or considering taking action, except to the extent that costs arise because of our negligence, wilful misconduct or fraud.

Appendix 1 – Risk Disclosure Statement

Warning: the following risk disclosures are general and not intended to be exhaustive or comprehensive. You should inform yourself about the risks associated with specific products.

Introduction

The objective of this document is to explain to you the nature of various transactions prior to your instructing Barclays Securities (India) Private Limited (“we”, “us” or “our”) to execute such transactions. The associated risk of loss in entering into such transactions can be substantial.

This document may not be sufficient to explain all the risks and other significant aspects of entering into the various types of transactions discussed in this document. You should therefore fully understand the nature of the transactions and contractual relationships, the extent of your exposure to risk and the potential losses that can be incurred and, as appropriate; consult your financial and tax advisers or other professional advisers before entering into such transactions. In particular, derivatives transactions are not suitable for many members of the public. You should carefully consider whether such transactions are suitable for you in light of your financial resources, experience, objectives for engaging in the transactions, ability to bear risks and other relevant circumstances.

Please read through this document carefully and consult your Relationship Manager if you have any questions.

Section 1

1.1 General risks of transactions

In considering whether to trade or enter into any transaction, you should be aware of the following.

1.2 Potential losses

You may sustain substantial losses on the transactions if market conditions move against your positions. It is in your interest to understand fully the impact of market movements, in particular the extent of profit or loss you would be exposed to when there is an upward or downward movement in the relevant rates. Your position on various transactions may be liquidated at a loss and you will then be liable for any resulting deficit in your account with us. Under certain circumstances, it may be difficult to liquidate an existing position, assess the value, determine a fair price or assess your exposure to risk.

1.3 Liquidation of positions

Under certain market conditions you may find it difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. Placing contingent orders, such as “stop-loss” or “stop-limit” orders, will not necessarily avoid loss or limit your losses to the intended amounts, as it may be difficult or impossible to execute such orders without incurring substantial losses under certain market conditions. Strategies using combinations of positions, such as “spread” or “straddle” positions may be as risky as taking simple “long” or “short” positions.

1.4 Risk of margin trading

The risk of loss in financing a transaction by deposit of collateral is significant. The high degree of leverage that is often obtainable in margin trading can work against you as well as for you due to fluctuating market conditions. You may sustain large losses as well as gains in response to a small market movement. While the amount of the initial margin required to enter into a transaction may be small relative to the value of the transaction, a relatively small market movement would have a proportionately larger impact. You may sustain losses in excess of your initial margin funds or in excess of your cash and any other assets deposited as collateral with us (as the case may be). You may be called upon at short notice to make additional margin deposits or interest payments. If the required margin deposits or interest payments are not made within the prescribed time, your collateral may be liquidated without your consent. Moreover you will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account and interest charged on your account. The impact of interest costs could lead to an increase in any rate of return required to break even. You should therefore carefully consider whether such trading or financing arrangement is suitable in light of your financial position and investment objectives.

1.5 Risk of securities trading

The prices of securities can and do fluctuate, sometimes dramatically, and may become valueless. It is as likely that losses will be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling securities. In addition, securities regulations and investor protection rules vary with different exchanges. Some may expose investors in securities listed on those exchanges to high investment risk. In particular, certain exchanges allow companies to list with neither a track record of profitability nor any obligation to forecast future profitability. Such securities may be very volatile and illiquid and their greater risk profiles mean that trading on such exchanges or in such securities may be more suited to professional or sophisticated investors. You should seek independent professional advice if you are uncertain of or have not understood any aspect of the nature of the exchange or the risks involved in trading such securities. We would also highlight that in respect of “small cap shares”, there is a risk of losing money when shares are bought in smaller companies. There is a big difference between the buying price and the selling price of these shares. If they have to be sold immediately, you may get back much less than the amount that you paid for them. Some investments may be very illiquid, meaning that they are infrequently traded, and hence it may be difficult to sell them on within a reasonable timeframe or at a price which reflects “fair” value. In extreme cases an investment may be non-readily realizable. In this case there may be no secondary market available, and it may be difficult to obtain any reliable independent information about the value and risks associated with such an investment.

1.6 Pricing relationships

The normal pricing relationships between a derivative and its underlying assets may not exist in certain circumstances. The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to assess the “fair” value of a derivative position.

1.7 Tax risks

Before entering into any transaction you should understand the tax implications of doing so, e.g. income tax. Different transactions may have different tax implications. The tax implications are dependent upon your specific circumstances, the nature of your activities and the transactions in question. There can be no guarantee that the nature, basis or incidence of taxation may not change during the lifetime of an investment. This may cause potential current or future tax liabilities. You should therefore consult your tax adviser to understand the relevant tax considerations.

1.8 Counterparty risks

All transactions that are executed upon your instructions with counterparties and brokers are dependent on their due performance of their obligations. The insolvency or default of such counterparties and brokers may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent.

Please ensure that you are aware of the identity of the contractual counterparty you are or may be matched with. Often, you will be purchasing an unsecured obligation of such counterparty (as opposed to an obligation of a central clearing corporation as would be the case with exchange traded futures and options) and you should evaluate the comparative credit risks. Where you purchase a debt instrument, such as a note or a bond, you should be aware that you may be taking the credit risk of both your contractual counterparty and the issuer of the debt instrument.

1.9 Terms and conditions

It is important that you fully understand the terms and conditions of any transactions that you propose to undertake, including the contractual specifications of any exchange-traded option or contract, the circumstances under which you may become obliged to make or take delivery of an underlying asset upon settlement of a derivatives transaction, and the commissions, fees and other charges for which you will be liable. You should therefore familiarise yourself with any agreement or confirmation that you may enter into with us. You must fully understand your rights and obligations under that agreement or confirmation, and carefully study the trading mechanism and understand the potential risks involved before you trade. You should not sign any agreement or confirmation unless you are familiar with the contents or effects of those documents or your professional advisers have explained the contents and effects.

1.10 Non-diversification

Your portfolio may be subject to risks arising out of non-diversification if the assets in your portfolio exhibit a high concentration of specific securities, industry sectors, asset types, maturity periods or other asset features.

1.11 Volatility of returns

The value of investments and the amount of income derived from them may go down as well as up. All investments can be affected by a variety of factors, including macro-economic market conditions such as the interest or exchange rate environment, or other general political factors in addition to more company or investment specific factors.

Section 2

2.1 Equity securities and equity funds

Ownership of an equity security represents a direct stake in the company concerned. Such an investment will participate fully in the economic risk of the company and its value can therefore fall as well as rise. The price volatility of equity markets can change quickly, and cannot be assumed to follow historic trends. In adverse market conditions irrecoverable capital losses could be incurred. In the worst case, a company could fail and if this happens its equity can become worthless. These securities are commonly used by investors seeking longer term capital growth. Examples of typical company characteristics which could heighten equity investment risks are:

- (a) a low market capitalization;
- (b) a product set that is undiversified or reliance on single markets as a major source of income;
- (c) a significant reliance on borrowing as a source of finance; (d) a significant level of fixed costs to pay, irrespective of output, production or turnover levels;
- (e) major income sources which are seasonal or “cyclical” in nature; and
- (f) companies trading primarily in emerging markets particularly during poor market conditions, or in countries where legal property rights may be difficult to enforce.

2.2 Debt securities and fixed income funds

The value of debt investments (or “bonds”) can generally be expected to be more stable than that of equity investments. However in some circumstances, particularly when interest rate expectations are changing, the value of most bonds is also volatile. The most common use of a bond is to provide a reliable yield, or source of income until maturity. For example the value of a bond can be adversely affected by a number of factors such as:

- (a) the issuer’s credit rating, which reflects their ability to repay the amounts payable when they fall due;
- (b) the market expectations about future interest and inflation rates;
- (c) amount of interest payable (the coupon);
- (d) the length of time until the debt falls due for repayment; or
- (e) the seniority of a bond within the capital structure of a company, and the quality of any security available.

The factors which are likely to have a major impact on the value of a bond are the perceived financial position of the issuer, and changes to market interest rate expectations. Bonds issued by major governments tend to be lower risk investments, while the risks of other debt securities (such as corporate issuers) can vary greatly. For example if an issuer is in financial difficulty, there is an increased risk that they may default on its repayment obligations. In this event, little or no capital may be recovered; any amounts repaid may take a significant amount of time to obtain.

Derivatives transactions involving Special Risks

Options

2.3 Risks on options trading

Transactions in options carry a high degree of risk. Purchasers and sellers of options should familiarise themselves with the type of options (i.e. put or call) which they contemplate trading and the associated risks. You should calculate the extent to which the value of the options would have to increase for your position to become profitable, taking into account the premium paid and all transaction costs. You should also inform yourself of:

- (a) the characteristics and risks/volatility of the asset(s) to which a contract is linked (the “underlying”);
- (b) any relevant market quote conventions, such as the lot size of a contract and the value attributed to movements in the value of the underlying;

- (c) the “leveraged” exposure to price movements in the underlying, which significantly increases volatility;
- (d) the sums you are able to afford to risk before you may wish to close out;
- (e) how different investments in derivatives might interact with one another;
- (f) any ongoing responsibilities you may have during the life of the contract such as any requirements to post cash amounts as “Margin”, and the potential consequences of failure to do so; and
- (g) any action you may need to take in order to exercise or opt for settlement at or before expiry/

If you are unsure of any of these or other aspects of a derivatives contract you are considering entering into, please consider your actions carefully.

The purchaser of options may offset its position by trading in the market or exercise the options or allow the options to expire. A person who purchases an option should be aware that in order to realize any value from the option, it will be necessary either to offset the option position or to exercise the option. A relatively small movement in the price of the underlying security can therefore result in a disproportionately large movement, unfavourable or favourable, in the value of options. The purchaser of an option should be aware that some option contracts may provide only a limited period of time for exercise of the option, and some option contracts may provide for the exercise of the option on a specified or stipulated date. The exercise of an option results in the purchaser acquiring or delivering the underlying interest. If the purchased options expire worthless, you will suffer a total loss of your investment which will consist of the option premium paid plus transaction costs.

Selling (writing or granting) an option generally entails considerably greater risk than purchasing options. Although the premium received by the seller is fixed, the seller may sustain a loss well in excess of the amount of the premium received. The seller will be liable to deposit additional margin to maintain the position if the market moves unfavourably. If you fail to do so within the time required, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be responsible for the resulting deficit. The seller will also be exposed to the risk of the purchaser exercising the option and the seller will be obligated to acquire or deliver the underlying interest. If the option is not covered, the risk of loss can be unlimited.

Additional risks common to options trading

Terms and conditions of contracts: before you conduct your transactions, you should understand the terms and conditions of the specific option which you are trading and the associated obligations (e.g. the expiration dates and restrictions on the time of exercise). Under certain circumstances, the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option) may be modified by the exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying interest.

Futures

2.4 What rights and duties do you have?

Futures entail the obligation to deliver or take delivery on a specified expiration date of a defined quantity of an underlying interest at a price agreed on the contract date. Underlying for futures include assets such as equities and benchmarks such as indices.

Caution: Futures can involve special risks, which arise because an investor is exposed to the movement of a proportionately large amount of the underlying in return for a small upfront payment. This can either work in the favour or against an investor, depending on the difference between the current market price of the underlying and the strike price defined in the contract. They are therefore only suitable for investors who are familiar with this type of instrument, have sufficient liquid assets and are able to absorb any losses that may arise. Before you conduct your transactions, you should understand the terms and conditions of the specific futures contract (e.g. the circumstances under which you may become obligated to make or take delivery of the underlying interest of the futures contract).

For bought futures an investor will profit from rising market prices, and vice versa for sold futures or forwards. Please also note that the current price at which an asset can be traded in the futures market may differ from the price at which it can be bought or sold immediately at the time of dealing. This can work either in the favour or against the returns experienced by an investor

2.5 Risks to be borne in mind

Margin requirements: on buying or (short) selling an underlying asset on the futures market, you must supply a specified initial margin on agreement of the contract. This is usually a percentage of the total value of the contracted instruments. In addition, a variation margin is calculated periodically during the life of the contract. This corresponds to the book profit or loss arising from any change in value in the contract or underlying instrument.

Caution: In the event of a book loss, the variation margin can be several times as large as the initial margin. The terms for calculating the variation margin are laid down in the applicable exchange regulations or contract provisions. You are obliged to deposit the required initial or variation margin cover with us for the entire life of the contract.

Additional risks associated with futures and options trading

Structured products

2.6 What are structured products?

Structured product is the generic phrase for securities which provide economic exposure to a wide range of asset classes using a structured approach. This may include providing capital protection such that an investor will not have economic exposure to performance of the underlying assets below a certain level. This also includes products where the potential return from your investment may be different to that normally expected from the underlying assets, but where your capital may be at risk. Structured products are combinations of two or more financial instruments. At least one of them must be a derivative. Together, they form a new investment product. Structured products can be traded either on- exchange or over the counter. Every structured product has its own risk profile since the risks of their individual components may be reduced, eliminated or increased. Hence it is particularly important that you are fully aware of the risks involved before acquiring any such product. Such information can be found, for example, in the relevant product literature.

2.7 What are structured products with capital protection?

Structured products with capital protection consist of two elements: a fixed-income investment (especially a bond or a money market investment) and an option. This combination enables the holder to participate in the price movements of one or more underlying assets (via the option or participation component) while at the same time limiting potential losses (via the bond or capital protection component). The capital protection component may only cover a portion of the capital invested and can be well under 100% of the capital invested, depending on the product. Capital protection does not therefore mean 100% repayment of the purchase price for all products. The option component usually comprises one option or a combination of options. The risks this component entails therefore correspond to those of the corresponding option or option combination. Depending on the underlying's market value, it can expire without value. The participation and protection elements can be separated, depending on the product in question. This allows you to retain or dispose of each individual component separately

2.8 Risks to be borne in mind

Every structured product has its own risk profile resulting from the interaction of its component risks. Since there is almost limitless potential to combine product elements, we cannot go into detail here about the risks involved in any particular case. Before effecting any such transaction, be sure that you are fully aware of the risks involved. Such information can be found, for example, in the relevant product literature. Issuer's credit risk and liquidity risk: With structured products, buyers can only assert their rights against the issuer. Hence, alongside the market risk, particular attention needs to be paid to issuer risk. You need therefore to be aware that, as well as any potential loss you may incur due to a fall in the market value of the underlying, a total loss of your investment is possible if the issuer should default. You should also note that while market makers, who in most cases are the issuers themselves, normally guarantee that structured products are tradable, liquidity risks cannot be excluded. Investors should be aware that the return of capital invested at the end of the investment period is not guaranteed and therefore investors may get back less than was originally invested.

Risks arising from equity linked notes and other structured securities: Certain notes and securities may be linked to the performance of equities or other underlying references. You should study the terms of such products carefully and understand the risks involved including the nature of the underlying assets and extent of their economic exposure to those assets. In some cases structured products may offer high income or a high level of participation to the capital growth experienced by the underlying assets. These products generally do not incorporate capital protection, and any that is provided is dependent on a financial index or basket of indices meeting certain conditions during the product life (such as a minimum value). Such products generally include leverage, and their value can be subject to sudden and large falls if the conditions which disapply protection arise. You may sustain a total or partial loss of your investment.

Investors should review product termsheets and other literature carefully for details of any factors which might impact on how the payoff from a product may change with different economic or market conditions. In particular where the payoff from a product incorporates conditional protection, if the protection barrier is breached the capital value of an investment will be exposed to the full risk of the underlying. In relation to structured notes (“Notes”) where the returns on the Notes are linked directly or indirectly (such as via options) to changes in the market of the underlying instrument, you will be exposed to price volatility in that market. You should therefore make your own assessment of the relevant market concerned. You should note that the underlying instrument may be traded in different jurisdictions and on different markets. The market on which the Notes may be traded may be different from the market on which the underlying instrument is traded. Accordingly, the nature of the risks a holder of the Notes is subject to may be very complex.

If the underlying instrument is a stock index, you should note that the value of the underlying instrument may change if the method of calculating the index is changed notwithstanding that the market for the underlying component stocks remains unchanged.

You should be aware that the product terms described only apply to investors who invest at launch and who hold the product until final maturity. Investors should be aware that early redemption or secondary market purchase could result in a capital loss, even where the product terms protect or guarantee return of the nominal amount purchased. Although the Notes may be listed on a stock exchange, there may not be a secondary market for the Notes. Accordingly you may not be able to find purchasers for the Notes should you wish to dispose of the notes and the Notes may not have any market value. We do not have any obligation to purchase the Notes from you. Accordingly, you should expect that you are required to hold the Notes until their maturity.

You should also note that the tax implications of the Notes may be different from the underlying instrument.

Investments in non-traditional funds

3.1 What are non-traditional funds?

Non-traditional funds are funds or investment companies that differ from traditional equity and bond investments on account of their investment style.

Alternative investments may be used by some clients to further diversify the investment risks present within their portfolio of assets. These investments are very bespoke in nature and may involve unique or unusual risks as a result of providing alternative sources of return for a portfolio. It is important that you understand the properties of the type of assets before making such an investment.

Investors should only invest in these products if they are prepared to sustain a total or substantial loss of the money they have invested, plus any commission or other transaction charges.

The phrase “alternative investments” can cover a very wide range of investment products, and the major classes of these products and specific risks associated with them are set out below.

- (a) Private Equity and Private Equity Funds Private equity funds commonly invest in any form of equity or company that is not openly traded via a public investment exchange. The companies concerned will therefore raise finance privately and will not be subject to stringent listing rules or filing requirements as a result. This factor means that private equity funds may invest in a wide range of unlisted companies. They may be small start-up companies with little or no proven track record, and range up to firms which are of a significant size with a long and established trading history. A number of attributes of private equity investment give rise to unique risk factors such as:

- (i) non-transferable investments, or a long “lock up” period during which the investment cannot be sold. Even if a buyer is found, it may not be possible to sell and any sale which is permitted may not occur at a price which reflects fair value;
- (ii) the committed capital may be drawn down during a capital commitment period. Investors must be capable of making payments to satisfy the capital calls made throughout the commitment period;
- (iii) a focused portfolio of investments, which could lead to exposure to an undiversified economic exposure to the underlying assets;
- (iv) possible use of significant leverage or borrowing, which amplifies possible risks;
- (v) a possible lack of scrutiny or accountability of management to shareholders for decisions they make; and
- (vi) distributions are generally made in cash, however if a fund is unable to sell its interest in a private company, it may distribute minority interests in these companies to fund investors.

It is important that you are familiar with the type of assets and the terms of any fund you might contemplate direct or indirect investment in equity, debt or any other security issued by a private company

- (b) Property or property development funds Investment in real property or property funds involves a number of risks particular to this class of asset. Notably fixed property is immovable and might not be easy to sell or to value independently. As a result of the illiquid nature of property it may take time to realize any investment made even when participating in a property fund.

There is no guarantee that the underlying properties will remain occupied, or that they might not incur significant maintenance or restoration costs which may impact on the returns available. All property is subject to local risks which may be unique in nature, which may be caused by factors such as the prevailing legal, economic, environmental or political circumstances.

Investors in property development funds face additional risks related to the successful completion of the development project both on time and according to budget. Even if a project is successfully completed, there is no guarantee that properties will either be sold or tenanted at the intended cost or timeframe. Commercial property is also subject to risks related to the type of use associated with the property, and the prosperity of the local or national economy relevant to the tenants and their business.

Returns available from property funds may also be affected by leverage where borrowing is used to finance either construction or purchase

3.2 What general risks do you need to be aware of ?

Non-traditional investments can take countless different forms. Hence we cannot go into detail here about the risks involved in any particular case. Before making any such investments, be sure to seek comprehensive advice about the particular risks involved and to study carefully any offers.

It is not uncommon for there to be little information available concerning a non-traditional investment. Moreover, many investment strategies are highly complex and very difficult to understand. Changes in strategy that can lead to a substantial increase in the level of risk are often virtually overlooked, accorded too little attention or noticed too late.

The liquidity and tradability of non-traditional investments can vary a great deal. Fixed holding periods lasting many years are not unusual. Provisions regarding trading frequency and holding periods may change frequently and rapidly. Liquidations can stretch over many years.

It is important to understand that it may be difficult to liquidate or sell an investment of this type, or to identify an independently determined fair valuation for an interest in this kind of vehicle. In addition you may not be protected by certain regulatory protections or compensation schemes in the event that a scheme operator acts unlawfully and causes a loss to you when managing fund assets. Such risks can be mitigated through the performance of extensive due diligence prior to investment, or through investment via a professionally managed fund of funds.
